Edgeworth Ladies' Boarding School,
BRADDOCKSFIED, NEAR PITTSBURGH,
Will recommence its engagements on the first Monday of October next.

THE increased and increasing approbation given to this institution cannot fail to produce a corresponding zeal and energy, and a desire to secure a settled good opinion. At this time very many additions have been made, for the convenience, comfort, and well doing of the pupils.—In so large a field as is open for education, understood in its true and extensive sense, there must be room for continual culture. Unabated will be the effort to do the utmost possible to meet so responsible a charge as the care of youth, and to this effort will be added the aid experience brings.—With little observation, in every succeeding month, somewhat is seen to revise and improve.

Edgeworth Seminary has been now of several years standing, and, disclaiming all egotism, it is only the fact to say that experience enables it to offer rather an increase than a diminution of means to give satisfaction.

The health enjoyed by the inmates, and beauty of situation of Braddocksfield Mansion, are well known to visiters, but for information of strangers, it is necessary to state, that in both particulars terms too flattering cannot easily be used.

To instruct, coercive means are not employed—reference is made to the heart as well as the head. Pains are taken to inculcate, that to be great, it is an indispensable to be virtuous; and as the worth of knowledge is only to be estimated by its tendency to right action, the study of every branch, and the proportion of time given to it, will be made subservient and tributary to useful moral and religious improvement.

Sabbath day engagements must not be interrupted unnecessarily. Pupils living at a distance, or from any cause, disposed to make Braddocksfield, during the vacation, their home, are invited to do so, and no additional charge is made.

TERMS.

THE public are respectfully informed that these works, under the late firm of S. Broadmeadow & Co., are now continued in operation by S. Broadmeadow, to whom all orders are requested to be directed.

S. Broadmeadow, having had much experience in England, in the manufacturing of this article, has succeeded in making from the American Iron, in Pittsburgh, Steel of equal quality to that imported, to the entire satisfaction of those friends who have favored him with their orders.

It is considered quite unnecessary, at this date, to say any thing more than to observe that three years' experience has fixed its value, and thirteen of the most respectable scientific mechanics of this city have testified to this, through the medium of the public papers, two years ago. Nov 25

POETRY.

INFANCY.—BY MRS. HUGHS.

Sweet is life's first opening flower,
Sweet is every budding grace—
Sweet the fondly flattering hour,
When life first lights the infant's face;
Sweet then the throbs the mother feels,
The smile that kindles up her eye,
When it the first fond glance steals
On the weak form of Infancy.

Sweet are the flattering hopes that swell
Her ardent breast, as she the form,
To her so new, yet lov'd so well,
Clasps to ward off each threat'ning storm;
And as the piteous note she hears
Of the first sad and mournful cry,
What the young sufferer so endears
As the sad wail of Infancy?

Young life is weak wherever found,
In man or in the creature wild,
But nought there is the world around,
So helpless as a human child,
The kitten soon can sport and play;
The dog soon acts with courage high,
But is there ought so helpless—say—
So weak as human Infancy?

Yet that Almighty power above,
Has ordered with the kindest care
That an untiring mother's love
Should all its wants, its sorrows share,
And whilst with sleepless eye she hangs
O'er its sick couch, and breathes the sigh,
Fond hopes suppress her struggling pangs
And wins her smiles for Infancy.

It tells her that the breast is pure,
That vice is yet a stranger there,
And should truth hold the fort secure,
And virtue wave her standard there,
Then though the infant's cry should prove
A herald of the future sigh,
Still will be near those forms of love,
Which watch'd the couch of Infancy.

A HIGHLAND ANECDOTE.

BY SIR WALTER SCOTT, BART.

The same course of reflection which led me to transmit to you the account of the death of an ancient borderer,* induces me to add the particulars of a singular incident, affording a point which seems highly qualified to be illustrated by the pencil. It was suggested by the spirited engraving of the Gored Huntsman, which adorned the first number of your work, and perhaps bears too close a resemblance to the character of that print to admit of your choosing it as a subject for another. Of this you are the only competent judge.

The story is an old, but not an ancient one; the actor and sufferer was not a very aged man, when I heard the anecdote in my early youth. Duncan, for so I shall call him, had been engaged in the affair of 1746, with others of his class, and was supposed by many to have been an accomplice, if not the principal actor in a certain tragic affair, which made much noise a good many years after the rebellion. I am content with indicating this, in order to give some idea of the man's character, which was bold, fierce and enterprising. Traces of this natural disposition still remained on Duncan's very good features, and in his keen gray eye. But the limbs like those of the aged borderer in my former tale, had become unable to serve the purposes and obey the dictates of his inclination. On the one side of his body he retained the proportions and firmness of an active mountaineer; on the other, he was a disabled cripple, scarce able to limp along the street. The cause which reduced him to this state of infirmity was singular.

Twenty years or more before I knew Duncan, he assisted his brothers in forming a large grazing† in the Highlands, comprehending an extensive range of mountain and forest, land, morass, lake and precipice. It chanced that a sheep or goat was missed from the flocks, and Duncan, not satisfied with despatching his shepherds in one direction, went himself in quest of the fugitive in another.

In the course of his researches, he was induced to ascend a small and narrow path, leading to the top of a high precipice. Dangerous as it was at first, the road became doubly so as he advanced.—It was not much more than two feet broad, so rugged and difficult, and, at the same time so terrible, that it would have been impracticable to any but the light step and steady brain of a Highlander.—The precipice on the right rose like a wall, and on the left sunk to a depth which it was giddy to look down upon; but Duncan passed cheerfully on, now whistling the gathering of his Clan, now taking heed to his footsteps, when the difficulties of the path particularly required caution.

In this manner, he had more than half ascended the precipice, when in midway, and might almost be said, in middle air, he encountered a buck of the red deer species, running down the cliff by the same path, in an opposite direction. If Duncan had had a gun, no rencontre could have been more agreeable; but as he had not this advantage over the denizen of the wilderness, the meeting was in the highest degree unwelcome. Neither party had the power of retreating, for the stag had not room to turn himself in the narrow path, and if Duncan had turned his back to go down, he knew enough of the creature's habits to be certain that he would rush upon him while engaged in the difficulty of retreat. They stood therefore perfectly still, and looked at each other in mutual embarrassment for some space.

At length the deer, which was of the largest size began to lower his formidable antlers, as they do when they are brought to bay, and are preparing to rush upon hound and huntsman. Duncan saw the danger of a conflict in which he must probably come by the worst, and as a last resource stretched himself on the little ledge of rock which he occupied, and thus awaited the resolution which the deer should take, not making the least motion, for fear of alarming the wild and suspicious animal. They remained in this posture for three or four hours, in the midst of a rock which would have suited the pencil of Salvator, and which afforded barely room enough for the man and the stag, opposed to each other in this extraordinary manner.

At length the buck seemed to take the resolution of passing over the obstacle which lay in his path, and with this purpose approached towards Duncan very slowly, and with excessive caution. When he came close to the Highlander, he stooped his head down as if to examine him more closely, when the devil, or the untameable love of sport, peculiar to his country, began to overcome Duncan's fears. Seeing the animal proceed so gently, he totally forgot not only the dangers of his position, but the mutual compact which certainly might have been inferred from the circumstances of the situation.

With one hand Duncan seized the deer's horns, whilst with the other he drew his dirk. But in the same instant the buck bounded over the precipice carrying the Highlander along with him. They went thus down upwards of a hundred feet, and were found the next morning in the spot where they fell. Fortune, who does not always regard retributive justice in her dispensations, ordered that the deer should fall underneath and be killed upon the spot, while Duncan escaped with his life, but with the fracture of a leg, an arm, and three ribs. In this state he was found lying on the carcass of the deer, and the injuries which he had received rendered him for the remainder of his life the cripple I have described. I never could approve of Duncan's conduct towards the deer in a moral point of view, (although, as the man in the play said, he was my friend,) but the temptation of a hart of grease, offering as it were, his throat to the knife, would have subdued the virtue of almost any deer-stalker. Whether the anecdote is worth recording, or deserving of illustration, remains for your consideration. I have given you the story exactly as I recollect it.

This match came off on Saturday, according to the terms agreed upon. The original match was made between Colonel Charite and Mr. Osbaldeston, the former betting the latter one thousand guineas he did not ride two hundred miles in ten successive hours, during the Houghton Meeting, at Newmarket. Independent of this stake, Mr. Osbaldeston had large sums depending, having at first taken all the odds that were offered him, and ultimately laying 2 to 1 that he won. The match was made about three months back, but Mr. Osbaldeston did not commence severe training till within the last week, when he gradually increased his task from twenty to seventy and eighty miles a day, which he performed at full speed, and on the horses he had selected for the performance, to the number of which there was no limit. As the day approached betting became more brisk, but Mr. Osbaldeston gradually rose in the market, and on Friday evening one hundred to forty were laid upon him currently. A bet of 1000 to 100 was also made that he did not accomplish the distance in nine hours.

As early as six o'clock on Saturday morning preparations were made for the assemblage of the parties interested, at the Duke's Stand, near the Devil's Ditch; stoves were lit and every accommodation afforded.

Four miles had previously been measured on the round course commencing and ending opposite the Stand, parallel to the Cambridge Gap, and on this spot a turfed stage was erected for the purpose of Mr. Osbaldeston's mounting and dismounting, but of this he made no use, from the difficulty of getting the horses to stand in position. An area was enclosed with ropes and stakes, to prevent interruption on his starting and coming in.

At 7 o'clock, Colonel Charite and Mr. Osbaldeston arrived at the Stand in separate post chaises, the latter in the highest spirits and full of confidence. He, in fact, offered to bet any odds, he won, and an even thousand he did the distance in nine hours; but all betting was at a stand still. He was attired in a purple silk jacket, black velvet cap; doe small clothes, and top boots, and his weight with saddle and bridle, was estimated at 11st. 3lb. His age 47.

The umpires chosen were, for Colonel Charite, John Edward Bowater, Esq.; and for Mr, Osbaldeston, T. Thellusson, Esq. These gentlemen were prepared with stop watches, which at the start were set going and placed in a box together.

The saddles on which Mr. Osbaldeston rode were covered with sheepskin with the wool on; and it was arranged that each horse at one start should perform four miles. Some of them, it will be seen having to do the distance twice, thrice, and four times.

The morning was extremely unfavorable, commencing with a drizzling rain, which subsequently increased to a drenching shower, accompanied by a high and piercingly cold wind; but this did not damp the spirits of the rider, and at precisely twelve minutes after seven he was mounted and started, carrying a whip, and wearing spurs; the latter he dispensed with occasionally.

The following are the names of the horses and the respective times in which they performed their 4 miles:—

	m.	s.
1. Emma	9	0
2. Paradox	9	20
3. Liberty	9	25
4. Coroner	9	15
5. Oberon	9	40
6. Don Juan	9	0

The first twenty-four miles, including stoppages for mounting and dismounting, were performed in two minutes under the hour.

7. Morgan Rattler,	9	13
8. Paradox, 2d time,	9	6
9. Cannon-ball,	9	23
10. Clasher,	9	25

Clasher broke down, and came in at a trot, but the forty miles were performed in nineteen minutes and a half within the two hours.

11. Ultemar,	9	10
12. Fairy,	9	5

The forty-eight miles were performed in two hours, one minute, and five seconds, including mounting and dismounting. The ground getting heavy, Mr. Osbaldeston still in high spirits, although wet to the skin. Up to this time he had taken no refreshment, beyond a little gum arabic, which he held in his mouth.

13. Coroner, 2d time,	8	40
14. Liberty, 2d time,	9	30
15. Emma, 2d time,	9	21

This completed the sixty miles in 27 minutes less than the three hours. In the last run with Emma Mr. Osbaldeston went the wrong side of the post, but immediately turned and went back to the point of error. Mr. O. now took a little weak brandy and water, and again mounted.

16. Don Juan, 2d time,	9	8
17. Oberon, 2d time,	8	20
18. Cannon-ball, 2d time,	9	45

Seventy miles were done one minute under the three hours, and the seventy-two miles four minutes beyond the three hours.

19. Ultemar, 2d time,	9	0
20. Tranby,	8	10

The rain subsided, but the weather still cold and cheerless.

The eighty miles were done in three hours and twenty-five minutes and a half, including stoppages.

21. Fairy,	8	8
22. Morgan Rattler, 2d time,	9	28
23. Colt by Tramp,	8	58
24. Dolly,	8	58

Any odds on the performance of the match,

25. Acorn,	9	2

The HUNDRED MILES was now completed in four hours nineteen minutes and forty seconds. A proposition was made that Mr. Osbaldeston should alight and change his dress, but this he declined, and said he would go a few more rounds. He appeared rather stiff, but still in good spirits.

26. A Horse by Smolensko	8	52

Mr. Osbaldeston took a crust of bread and a mouthful of cold brandy and water, stopping rather more than two minutes.

27. Tranby, 2d time,	8	0
28. Skirmisher,	9	25
29. Guildford,	8	25

The rain again came down in torrents during the last round; but again cleared off, and was once more favorable.

30. Dolly, 2d time,	8	45

He had now completed one hundred and twenty miles in five hours eleven minutes and a half, and determined on taking some refreshment. He immediately proceeded up into the Duke's stand where he recognized some female friends, and immediately sat down to a hearty lunch of cold partridge. He said he was as "hungry as a hunter;" and after taking a glass of sherry, and stopping six minutes and twenty seconds, again mounted without changing his dress in any particular.

His next horse, the 31st change, was Ikey Solomons. Ikey, soon after starting, made a slip, and dropped a little forward, Mr. Osbaldeston, standing on his stirrups at the moment, was thrown over his head, and fell full length on the ground. Fortunately he retained the reins, sustained no injury though shook severely, and mounting instanter pursued his course, performing the four miles in twelve minutes. On alighting he was evidently flurried and distressed, but he shook it off, and again started in high glee—25 to 20 offerred he did not do the distance in nine hours, the fall having given new hopes to the backers of time.

32. Tam O'Shanter,	9	40
33. Eldorado,	9	20

In coming in this round he showed slight weakness and for a moment sat on the knee of a friend, but was mounted and off in thirty seconds.

34. Coventry,	9	0

One hundred and thirty-six miles had now been performed in six hours; so that three hours remained to complete the distance in nine hours, and four in ten hours, there being sixty-four miles to do. 6 to 4 against the nine hours taken.

35. Ringleader. The start on this horse was quick and excellent, and the distance performed in	8	42
36. Tranby, 3d time,	8	15
37. Ipsala,	8	20
38. Skirmisher,	8	45
39, Guilford, 2d time,	9	10

The interest now became more intense. One hundred and fifty-six miles had been performed, and there remained two hours and eleven minutes to accomplish the remaining forty-four in the nine hours, or at the rate of twenty miles an hour, which considering what had already been done, was deemed easy work. On alighting from the last horse he appeared as fresh and gay as a lark, laughed heartily, and took a glass of brandy and water, and said he was as hungry as a hawk. In forty seconds he was again mounted and off, amidst loud cheers, on

40. Streamlet,	8	50

The odds were now 6 to 4 nine hours, and 10 to 1 he did it within the ten hours.

There were now forty miles to perform in two hours and three minutes, which, barring an accident, was backed as a certainty. It was accomplished in the following order:—

41. Donegani,	9	12
42. Hassan,	9	0

The weather now greatly improved, the sun shone out with cheerfulness, and as Mr. O. came in, sitting as firm as a rock, he was loudly cheered. He appeared as fresh as ever, mounted in six seconds, and was off on

43. Surprise, filly,	9	10
44. Ringleader, 2d time,	9	30
45. Tranby, 4th time,	8	50

There were now but twenty miles to do in one hour and eleven minutes, and on starting, Mr. O. said he would bet a 100 to 1, no other person would do the distance in the same time. The weather became again unfavorable, but he was undaunted.

46. Coventry, 2d time,	9	30

There now remained but sixteen miles to perform in one hour and one minute, which was accomplished with ease by the following 4 horses.

47. Ispala, 2d time,	9	0
48. Streamlet, 2d time,	9	0

A tremendous shower met Mr. O. soon after starting this round, and Streamlet actually turned round, and refused to face it, and was at length got off and completed the distance in the time stated, to the mortification of those who looked to a new casualty in their favor.

49. Donegani, 2d time,	10	15
50. Liberty, 2d time,	9	40

In coming at the conclusion, the crowd of spectators became more numerous than ever, and with difficulty was the winning post kept clear. Mr. O. came in in gallant style, amid tremendous cheers, thus accomplishing his Herculean task in exactly eight hours and forty-two minutes within the nine hours, thereby winning all his bets on time. He stood a large part of the bet of 1,000 to 100 against the nine hours.

The umpires had previously taken the watches from the box, and at the completion of the match confirmed the time we have stated in the most public manner.

Mr. Osbaldeston now proposed to ride another mile, lest any dispute might arise as to the precise distance; but the umpires declared themselves perfectly satisfied, and that no question whatever occurred to them as to the full and fair conclusion of the undertaking; an announcement which was received with renewed acclamations, and Mr. Osbaldeston dismounted, and once more entered the Duke's stand, where he received the congratulations of his private friends. He was in high spirits, and perfectly fresh. In five minutes, having put on his great coat, and without other change, he mounted a favorite hack, and surrounded by a large field of horsemen, cantered off to Newmarket, where he took a warm bath, and retired to bed for a short time.

The greatest credit is due the proprietors of the different horses that were used, for the liberality with which they supplied the squire's demands.—Tranby, which performed the distance four times, is the property of Mr. Gulley, and proved himself an extraordinary horse as to game and sound bottom. Infinite credit is due to Mr. England and Mr. Weston, for the unremitting attention which they paid in making the arrangements, and affording the requisite assistance and refreshment through the arduous and unexampled performance. When we left Newmarket at five o'clock, Mr. Osbaldeston was quite as well as could have been expected, and highly elated with his success. Large sums have changed hands, and the anxiety in town on Saturday night to know the event was prodigious.

The horses were kept ready at the stables close to the Duke's stand, and as they were wanted were brought out in readiness for mounting. A minute was generally occupied in mounting and dismounting, Mr. O. preferring a "leg up" to the use of the stage, and generally conversing freely with his friends The horses were principally lent by gentlemen residing at Newmarket, who sent them to the course in care of their own training grooms; several, however, were the property of Mr. O. himself. The interest excited by the match, attracted an immense multitude to Newmarket, and beds on Friday night were procured at any price. In the early part of the morning, from the unfavorable state of the weather, there were not many persons at the Duke's stand; as the day advanced, and became more favorable, however, the company increased, and at last presented a splendid appearance. Many equipages of the haut ton were present, several ladies of fashion giving additional brilliancy to the scene. It should be remarked, that in giving the time occupied in riding the respective distances, we do not include the periods occupied in mounting and dismounting, which occupied from six seconds to two minutes.

The exact number of horses used in the match was twenty-nine. Some were lame, and Ikey Solomons, like his great namesake, was quite out of favor after his first attempt. Tranby proved the best horse of the lot. Mr. Gulley, his proprietor, was extremely attentive throughout the match—we believe he even betted 500 to 50 on the nine hours. Much attention was paid at the time taken by each horse in doing the distance.—Tranby was the quickest, and next to him the little filly Fairy. Considering the state of the weather, and the rough surface of the course, the pace was first rate. Guildford, with a stringhalt in both his hind legs, excited great doubts from his awkward gait; but he proved himself sound, and to be depended on.

At the latter part of the match, Mr. Gulley, young Dutch Sam, and Tom Oliver, all lent Mr. O. a knee to sit down while he took wine, glasses of brandy and water, liquid jelly, and bread soked in sherry. The ladies were highly elated with the vigor of the modern Nimrod, and cheered, and shook their handkerchiefs with great enthusiasm. He wore a hunting belt: and although provided with a double change, he would not alter a thread of his dress.

Mr. Osbaldeston has, by this matchless feat, proved himself a number one at almost every manly exercise, save boxing. He has carried off the palm at hard riding, steeple chases, aquatic feats on the river, shooting and pedestrianism;—in fact, he is in his way a perfect nonpareil, and outstrips all competitors. He has also the best trotters in the country, and in his match with Tom Thumb, at Cambridge, beat all calculations on the power of the horse.

The first news of the completion of the match, and the only correct account, which we have copied from Bell's Life in London, reached London, shortly before 12 o'clock, on Saturday night, and was back in print to Newmarket, at one o'clock, next day.

It will be seen that the two hundred miles were ridden, including stoppages, in eight hours and forty-two minutes; so that, allowing for time occupied in changing, refreshmet, &c. the actual riding was done at a rate exceeding 25 miles an hour! The changes were 50 in number, and deducting six minutes for the lunch time; but 36 minutes were allowed for mounting and re-mounting 50 times, being an average of less than a minute; but we think the actual average occupied in the changes, was upwards of a minute, making the pace upwards of 25 miles an hour.

RUSSIAN AGGRANDISEMENT.

The London Messenger (Bell's) has the following interesting article on the gigantic and rapidly increasing empire of the Autocrat of all the Russias:—Balt. American.

"With respect to Russia, we think it the duty of all the Powers, more especially of England and France, to understand the position which Russia intends to occupy, since her subjugation of Poland. Russia ought certainly to be called upon to explain her movements and intentions. The Emperor Nicholas is undoubtedly pursuing a bold and intrepid course which has hitherto been unchecked.—Russia at the present time stands among nations like an armed man amongst his fellow creatures in the iron age of the world. She is cased all over with impenetrable steel, and menaces both enemies and friends. Secure in the rear of her immense possessions, and presenting comparatively a narrow frontier only to Europe, she is unassailable in any weak point by her adversaries; and since her entire subjugation of the Poles, she will find it not a difficult matter to press on from the Vistula to the Rhine whenever the occasion offers.

In the various changes and vicissitudes of human events, the invasion and destruction of civilized states by the barbarians of the North, make one of the most prominent features. A repetition of similar calamities becomes every day more probable in the South and West of Europe, as well as the North and East. The conquests and colonies of Russia in Siberia have straitened the limits of the pastoral life, and civilized wandering hordes into soldiers and citizens of a semi-barbarous cast. Their military posts and garrisons have caused the cultivation and inclosure of lands.—The objects of luxury are exchanged for the produce of the chase, and the supremacy of the Russian sceptre is acknowledged by the barbarian tribes of the North in the payment of an annual tribute.

On the East towards Persia, Russia is making enormous acquisitions, and she already trenches in one direction, on the confines of China. The probability of barbarian invasion is undoubtedly much diminished, and continues to decrease in the West of Europe; but if the spirit of conquest be checked, or has evaporated as regards the Western Powers, it has terribly revived in the East of Europe since the ascention of the Emperor Nicholas. And will this spirit not break out in another direction since the extinguishment of Polish independence?

It becomes, therefore, an important question to consider what ought to be the policy of Great Britain, and of the other States on the continent, in the present position of Russia. Will it be safe to suffer Russia to incorporate Poland with her native provinces? Ought she to be permitted thus to stretch on from conquest to conquest, carrying the most unmitigated despotism along with her wherever she plants her foot? We think the Government of Lord Grey should keep a steady eye upon this enormous aggrandisement of an ambitious Power.

Within the last three years, Turkey has fallen before her feet, and we beheld the Russian flag flying upon the shores of the Bosphorus and the Archipelago. The like number of years may bring the same Power to the Adriatic and to the Mediterranean, and perhaps establish her on the nearest coast of the German Ocean.

Russia has now got what she long wanted, by obtaining as tributaries Turkey and Persia, she has constructed a regular finance. Look at her securities in the market at the present moment! Her Five per Cents are at this time at 98 on the Stock Exchange, bearing a higher price than those of France. None of the tributary States of Russia will ever be able to lift their heads to independence, and Poland will be more especially beaten down under the hoof of her sordid and low-minded tyranny.

If we suffer Russia to proceed in thus obtaining new resources, and consolidating the old, she must eventually establish an ascendancy in Europe.—The North is always hungry—always ready to emigrate in arms to the South, if the means are only afforded.

Could Russia at once overrun the Turkish Empire, the evil might be less. The master of Constantinople would not consent to reside on a miserable bog on the banks of the Neva. By removing the seat of government to Constantinople, the North would speedily fall into decay. All the nobles, courtiers, and active spirits would press southward to the sunny land of the Vine and the Olive, and would forsake the scanty rye-crops and barren pine forests of the North. There is enough of vacant land to receive them, and one acre there is worth fifty. Prussia and Sweden would be liberated; for the North is only formidable because it is the seat of government. We might then trade with the new empire of the East. The new masters of the soil, like their predecessors, could only derive profit from their fruits and oil by selling them.

But Russia is fearful that the British lion may be roused by more intelligent spirits than have of late directed his movements. Turkey has been treated with apparent moderation, that no other Power may have a pretext for claiming a share of the spoils. It is to be gradually humbled by insults and exhausted by exactions. The North is to be strengthened out of its spoils, while the commerce of Turkey is to be rendered unprofitable to strangers.

How all this is to end is not for human foresight to discover. But it becomes the duty of an intelligent Government like that of Lord Grey to take time by the forelock, and to watch over the present course of Russia on the Vistula."

In Europe the year 1831 has been distinguished by the dangerous political and social agitation of France, Great Britain, Italy, Belgium, and parts of Germany; by the courageous struggle and utter lamentable discomfiture of the Poles; by the incursions and ravages of the Cholera Morbus; by the feuds and battles of the Dutch and Belgians; the choice of Prince Leopold for the Belgian throne, and what is called the final settlement of the Belgic question by the arbitrary decision of the great powers dictating by their plenipotentiaries at London. The refusal of the House of Lords to sanction the Reform Bill of the Commons has brought British affairs to a terrible crisis; a second refusal is likely to produce a general political convulsion, if not total murderous and destructive anarchy; if the Bill should be triumphant, still claims and pretensions, passions and powers have been excited, which it would have been extremely difficult to keep within any bounds, or to satisfy by any composition of Parliament other than one fatal to the monarchy. In France there is no complete political organization; they are rather breaking down than building up the government; every ministry has found it unavoidable or expedient to exert an arbitrary rule; Lafayette is in opposition, and in a minority in the Chamber of Deputies; the abolition of the hereditary peerage is but a developement of that republican sentiment which appertains to the circumstances and doctrines of the nation; the struggle of theories and factions is equally curious and ominous; the Orleans royalty is most unfavorably and strangely situated; it subsists merely as a shift and alternative—whether for the domestic parties or the foreign cabinets. Europe, to our view, is more unsettled and exposed now than it was at the beginning of the year; war is not averted; anarchy or a revolution in Great Britain would vastly aggravate the general turbulence, dismay and mutual enmity, it might occasion "a decomposition of the whole civil and political mass" in several kingdoms.—National Gazette.

General Aspect of Palestine.—The hills still stand round about Jerusalem, as they stood in the days of David and of Solomon. The dews fall on Hermon, the cedars grow on Libanus, and Kishop, that ancient river, draws its stream from Tabor as in the times of old. The sea of Galilee still presents the same natural accompaniments, the fig tree springs up by the way side, the sycamore spreads its branches, and the vines and olives still climb the sides of the mountains. The desolation which covered the cities of the plain is not less striking at the present hour than when Moses, with an inspired pen, recorded the judgment of God; the swellings of Jordan are not less regular in their rise than when the Hebrews first approached its banks; and he who goes down from Jerusalem to Jericho still incurs the greatest hazard of falling among thieves. There is, in fact, in the scenery and manners of Palestine, a perpetuity that accords well with the everlasting import of its historical records, and which enables us to identify with the utmost readiness the local imagery of every great transaction.—Edinburgh Cabinet Library, No. 4.

Extract from the Report of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

"On the 4th of July, 1828, the ceremony of laying the first stone was performed; but it was not until the autumn of that year that active operations towards the construction of the work were commenced; since that period its prosecution has been pursued with energy and zeal.

Owing to the peculiarly unfavorable topography of the country, on the first division of the road, the difficulties there have been very great, and have necessarily involved a considerable delay and expense. Taking into view, however, the extent of the excavations, embankments, viaducts, bridges, and culverts, all of which have been accomplished in a manner, not surpassed in this or any other country, it is confidently believed that no similar undertaking has been advanced with greater despatch, either here or abroad.

Now that the company have accomplished the most difficult part of the undertaking, and acquired, by experience, much valuable information and many facilities, which, from the novelty of the subject, could only be gained from a course of practical experiments, all doubts have been removed, and they are encouraged, by the most cheering confidence, in the entire success of their enterprise: at the same time, judging from the results ascertained since the valley of the Patapsco has been gained, they entertain no doubt but that the graduation, masonry, and construction with a double set of tracks may be accomplished between the present termination of the road and the Ohio river at or nearly within the original estimated cost of $20,000 per mile, and that in the event of the requisite funds being placed at the disposal of this company, the whole work might be completed and put into operation in five years.

From the extremely unfavorable surface over which the road was necessarily pass for the first eight miles in order to reach the valley of the Patapsco, it was early perceived that the expenses across that district would be very heavy, but it had been ascertained that in adopting this route, a line of road would be secured, which by some extensive embankments and deep cuttings near to the city of Baltimore, could be located with but a single summit for a distance of 180 miles, and with only two summits requiring stationary power along the entire line to the Ohio river, a result which, it is believed, has not been attained on any line of Railroad projected for the same extent in any other country. The approach to the first of these summits is by an acclivity so gradual as not to exceed an average of about 18 feet to the mile, and as the amount of tonnage passing westward will not be as great as that passing eastward, this line will consequently be more advantageous than if it were a perfect level.

The inclined planes over the first summit, at Par Spring Ridge, will be passed by an additional local power, and from the western side of that Ridge to the coal mines near Cumberland, the route is so favorable as to be adapted along the whole distance to locomotive steam engines; taking, therefore, the entire line together, it will be decidedly superior to a level road, since, like that on the eastern side of the Par Ridge, the acclivity for a very great portion of the distance is in the direction of the lesser tonnage which will pass upon the road.

From the eastern base of the Allegheny mountain, a series of inclined planes will be required to overcome a summit of about 1200 feet; from thence it has been ascertained that the road may be conducted to the Ohio river upon a line so nearly level as to be traversed without difficulty by locomotive steam power.

Although at the time of the commencement of this great national work, the individuals who embarked in the undertaking, had arrived at the conclusion that the system was capable of affording greater facilities for the transportation of both merchandise and passengers than could be attained, either by the best constructed turnpike roads or canals, yet the anticipations then formed of its capabilities have been vastly more than realised.—The many important improvements introduced within the last few years, both in the construction of railroads and in the application of machinery upon them, having perhaps doubled their effective power. It is honorable to our country that the system is indebted for several of these improvements to the genius and science of American citizens.

The ordinary speed now attained upon the Liverpool and Manchester Railroad, which work has not been so well executed as that part of our road laid on stone rails, is from 15 to 30 miles an hour, according to the horizontal position and structure of the road; and it is even asserted, that the whole distance of 32 miles, between these places, has been run in 33 minutes, or at the rate of 58 miles per hour.

From the experiments made upon the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, there is no reason to doubt, but that the traveling on it may at least be safely carried at the rate of from 12 to 15 miles an hour, by the aid of steam power, and that passengers may be conveyed from Baltimore to the Ohio river within from 24 to 30 hours, at all seasons of the year."

New York Canal Tolls.—The tolls collected this year upon the several Canals in the State, will be nearly as follows:—

Erie and Champlain	$1,193,474 70
Oswego	16,155 86
Cayuga and Seneca	12,842 95
Total,	$1,222,423 51

This is the gross amount, from which the expenses of collection are to be deducted. The actual increase on the Erie and Champlain Canal, over the amount received last year, will be about $160,000. There is also a respectable increase on each of the other canals.

The canal revenues are now pledged for the payment of the debt, contracted for the construction of the Erie and Champlain canals. The whole amount of Canal Revenue, this year, consisting of the Tolls, Auction and Salt duties, interest on the Canal Fund, and miscellaneous receipts will amount to about $1,575,000 and all expenses, including interest, will be about $600,000, and the surplus to be added to the Canal Fund, $975,000, about $200,000 more than the last. That fund applicable to the payment of the Canal debt will, on the 1st of January, exceed 2,600,000, leaving the actual debt less than 4,400,000. The Canal Revenues will be annually increasing, and it may be safely asserted, that three years more will create a fund equal to, or exceeding the amount of debt and the Canal Revenues, exclusive of interest on the fund, will then exceed two millions of dollars annually.—Baltimore Chronicle.

It was decided, a few months since, at the Court of Common Pleas in Providence, in the case of Georgia Tillinghast & Co. vs. William Hidden, that lottery tickets were not goods, wares and merchandise. The action was in assumpsit, to recover the amount of an account for lottery tickets sold by the plaintiffs to defendant, and charged in account. One of the plaintiffs was offered as a witness to swear to the account, which was objected to on the ground that lottery tickets were not the subject matter of book account, not being goods, wares and merchandise, but mere choses in action, like promissory notes, bills of exchange, bank bills, &c. The Court sustained the objection, and the plaintiffs were not allowed to swear to their account.

The insurance of Mrs. Staats, of Buffalo, whose loss is estimated at $10,000, by the late fire, expired at 12 o'clock of the very day on which the conflagration occurred in the afternoon.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE MONONGAHELA.—In another column of our paper, it will be seen that our neighbors in Brownsville are using their exertions to bring this subject once more before the legislature.—The object which they have in view, is one of very general interest; and we take this opportunity to suggest to our active public men, the propriety of co-operating with our neighbors in Brownsville. We believe that all who are acquainted with the Monongahela from its mouth to Brownsville, agree that no improvement in this State of equal importance, can be made, at so moderate an expense. The Governor, in his late message, made this improvement the subject of a special notice, and recommendation to the attention of the legislature. Surely, then, it does not become Pittsburghers to remain inactive. Let us unite our voices with those of the citizens of Brownsville, and of our executive, in asking for this improvement. Let it not be inferred from our silence, that we are indifferent or adverse to this important work.

JUDGE IRWIN.—We have been greatly surprised by the silence of the editors of the Mercury and of the Democrat, in rejation to the appointment of this gentleman. The nomination is probably at this moment before the Senate, and yet our neighbors continue silent. Like treacherous sentinels, they sleep while the enemies of our constitution are making dangerous and insiduous assaults upon its vital principles. From the manly and independent course pursued by these editors, when it was first announced that Mr. Irwin was appointed, we anticipated a different kind of conduct at this important crisis. They were Jacksonites, it is true; both (to use language which was familiar to them four years before,) were "hireling editors," yet they botn manfully and patriotically raised their voices in defence of the constitution of their country. Then it was only reported that such an appointment had been made; now, there is no doubt of it. Then Mr. Irwin was only nominated, now the nomination is placed before the Senate for confirmation. Then the appointment was but temporary, now it may be extended to the duration of the life of the appointee. Such watchful vigilance, at the time of the lesser danger, and such negligence at the time of the more alarming danger, is truly unaccountable. We subjoin a few extracts, "that they may serve as mirrors to stimulate" those editors "to future glorious actions." The following is from the Mercury:

JUDGE OF THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA.

It is stated as a report in the United States Gazette, that Thomas Irwin, Esq. has been appointed judge of the western district of Pennsylvania, in place of the Honorable Wm. Wilkins, resigned. We believe this report is entirely unfounded; and that Mr. Irwin has not received and will not receive this appointment. However friendly may be the feelings of the President towards Mr. Irwin personally, the names of several have been submitted to his consideration for this office, who, in a political point of view, are certainly equally meritorious, and who we might say without intending any disparagement to Mr. Irwin, are better qualified.—Besides, there is a constitutional objection to Mr. Irwin, which General Jackson will not disregard. It is declared in the 6th section, article 2d of the Constitution of the United States, that "no senator or representative, shall, during the term for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time." The salary of the judgeship was increased during the last Congress, and voted for by Mr. Irwin, and although according to the strict words of the Constitution, if Mr. Irwin should be appointed, it would not be an "appointment during the term for which he was elected," yet it would substantially be a violation of the constitution. It is precisely one of those cases that the true spirit of the constitution was intended to embrace. Judge Wilkins was at Washington city for some time previous to the rising of Congress.—The Senate rose on the 3d of March, and Judge Wilkins resigned on the same day immediately after. Perhaps the resignation was delayed till this late hour, in order to give the President an opportunity of making up his mind who to appoint, without regard to the case of Mr. Irwin. Now, should General Jackson take advantage of this accidental circumstance, and thus run counter to the spirit of the constitution, in filling that vacancy by the appointment of Mr. Irwin, would he not put it in the power of his enemies to say, that he had evaded the constitutional injunction on a mere quibble? We think he would; and cannot therefore help believing that the announcement of the appointment of Mr. Irwin, is premature.

The Allegheny Democrat, of the same date, has the following:

Mr. Irwin, it is suggested by some, is disqualified by the spirit and true meaning of the constitution. Being a member of the last Congress, which terminated the 3d inst., and an addition having been made to the salary appertaining to the office in question, in the session of 1829—'30, it is presumed, that, as he could not be entitled, by the express terms of the constitution, to the office previous to this month, that his application for it, made long since, was ill-advised and improper—and not meriting from the President that respectful consideration which is due to one made with no objectionable feature. If the resignation of Mr. Wilkins had been made previous to the third of March, there can be no doubt but that Mr. Irwin's seat in Congress would have rendered it incompatible for him to receive the appointment. We mention this circumstance, not from any hostility to Mr. Irwin, but from a settled conviction that justice requires it.

COMMUNICATION.

The writer often finds himself, from circumstances beyond his control, in the Middle, Southern, and Western States, and as a Traveler, casts a discriminating eye at chance, when night overtakes him. During one of the cold nights in December, the driver of the Stage landed him, about 12 o'clock, at the Buffalo House. Here, (and he must say, such an instance very seldom occurs with him,) at that late hour he was met by the Proprietor himself; and the reception received, reminded him of "Home, sweet Home." At this House he was compelled, from indisposition, to remain several days, and the attention and kindness evinced by the Principal, Mr. Powell, Jun., and his amiable family, cannot be forgotten so long as memory holds her seat. The House is well kept; Table calculated to please; and last, though not least, to a Traveler, Charges very satisfactory.

From the Brownsville Intelligencer.

At a large and respectable meeting of the citizens of the boroughs of Brownsville, Bridgeport, and their vicinities, convened at the Town Hall in the borough of Brownsville, on the evening of the 23d of December, A. D. 1831, Mr. GEORGE HOGG was called to the Chair, and ROBT. ROGERS appointed Secretary.

The meeting having been called to order, and the object of the meeting stated by the Chairman, to be to take into consideration the propriety of adopting measures to promote the improvement of the navigation of the Monongahela river, between Brownsville and Pittsburgh.

On motion, George Dawson, Goodloe H. Bowman, Thomas Sloan, Mr. David Porter, and Martin Tiernan were appointed a committee to draft resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting, who, after retiring for some time, returned, and reported the following preamble and resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The inhabitants of the South Western part of Pennsylvania have been for twenty years, deeply interested in the improvement of the Monongahela river, and for ten years past have made repeated and ineffectual applications for legislative aid to accomplish this purpose: and whereas it is universally believed by us, that in no other part of the state would an expenditure of the amount required for the thorough improvement of our river yield a result of equal magnitude—and whereas, we cordially approve the sentiments of our worthy Governor on the subject of internal improvements, and desire their speedy execution. Therefore,

Resolved, That our representatives be, and they are hereby instructed to co-operate in the liberal and enlarged scheme of Internal Improvement of our State, and they especially direct the attention of their respective Houses to the wants and wishes of their constituents, who have hitherto unaided by legislative bounty, and urged upon the notice of those honorable bodies, by every just and proper representation, the policy and propriety of assisting us in our projected improvement.

Resolved, That our representatives be, and are hereby requested by this meeting, to restore to the view of the legislature, the numerous petitions of former years, from many hundreds of our citizens, and use all the honorable means to obtain an appropriation for the improvement of the Monongahela river.

On motion, Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the Chairman and Secretary, and published in the Brownsville Intelligencer, and forwarded to the members of the Legislature of Pennsylvania.

CONGRESS.

Dec. 28.—In the Senate, after the presentation of various petitions and memorials, and first and second readings of bills, the following bills were read the third time and passed. The bill to amend the act passed for the benefit of George Johnson, 2d March, 1830; the bill for the relief of John H. Harrison; the bill to revive and continue in force the act providing for reporting the decisions of the Supreme court; and the bill supplementary to the several laws for the sale of the public lands. When the bill to provide for the armament of certain fortifications of the United States came up, Mr. Benton, from the Committee on Military Affairs, moved its indefinite postponement. A short debate then followed, in which the motion was supported by Messrs. Benton, Hayne, and Holmes, and opposed by Mr. Smith. The question was finally decided by yeas and nays in the affirmative, yeas 31, nays 7. The Senate spent a short time in the consideration of Executive business.

In the House of Representatives, among the petitions presented was one by Mr. Choate, of Mass., from a lady named Smith, the widow of Lieut. Jesse Smith, of the United States Navy, one of the gallant and ill-fated crew lost in the sloop of war Hornet. Mr. Wickliffe, from the Public Lands Committee, reported a bill to grant pre-emption rights to actual settlers on the public domain, who might purchase a quarter section of land, at the rate of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre. It was read twice and committed. A large number of private bills were discussed and acted upon; and the Military Appropriation bill for 1832, was introduced by Mr. McDuffie, from the Committee of Ways and Means, and read twice and committed to a Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union. The resolutions of Mr. Blair, of Tenn., and Mr. Duncan, on the subject of the distribution of the Public Lands, were further discussed until the close of the hour, when the House took up the question of the South Carolina claims, (the special order of the day,) which was passed through the Committee of the Whole, and afterwards considered in the House till the adjournment.—Telegraph.

December 29.—In the Senate, Mr. Benton, on leave, introduced a bill to abolish the duty on alum salt, which was read, and ordered to a second reading. The following bills were read the third time and passed. The bill authorising the State of Illinois to sell the Saline Lands belonging to that State; the bill authorising the mounting and equipping of a part of the army of the United States; the bill for the relief of Joseph Chamberlain; and the bill supplementary to the act granting pre-emption rights to the settlers on the public lands. The Senate transacted but little other business, and adjourned at an early hour.

In the House of Representatives, many private bills were acted upon. The attention of the House was occupied in the early part of the day by the renewed discussion of the resolution on the subject of the distribution of the Public Lands. Mr. Root continued his speech against the proposition, but had not concluded at the expiration of the hour. The South Carolina claims bill was likewise taken up and debated, till after 3 o'clock, the House adjourned.

December 30.—In the Senate, the bills for the relief of Hartwell Vick, and to establish an additional land office in the State of Indiana, were read the third time and passed. The bill introduced, on leave, by Mr. Benton, to abolish the duty on alum salt, having been read the second time, an interesting debate arose on the question, whether it should be referred to the Committee on Finance, or the Committee on Manufactures, Messrs. Benton, Hayne, and Smith, supported the question of reference to the former Committee, and Messrs. Clay and Dickerson spoke in favor of referring the Bill to the Committee on Manufactures. On taking the question of reference to the Committee on Finance, it was decided in the negative—yeas 17, nays 22; and the bill was then referred, without a division, to the Committee on Manufactures. The Senate spent some time in the consideration of executive business.

In the House of Representatives, petitions and resolutions were, as usual, introduced and referred. The proposition for the distribution of the public lands, was further discussed until the close of the hour. Mr. McDuffie reported the Indian and fortification appropriation bills, which were severally read twice, and referred to a Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union. A variety of private bills were voted upon, and the House adjourned till Tuesday.

DOCTOR ROBERT'S

☞WELCH MEDICAMENTUM.☜

FOR the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Dysentery, Headach, Loss of Appetite, Flatulence, Hypochondria, Hysterics, Dropsical Complaints, and Heartburn. It also prevents all Bilious disorders, and removes habitual Costiveness, Asthma, Strangury, Gravel, Rheumatism, Gout, and Impurities of the Blood.

A person who uses this Medicamentum will not require the use of the lancet, or any means of the healing art. It restores and revives the animal spirits, invigorates the system, removes nervous tremors, obtunds rheumatic and anthritic pains, and prevents their return. It cleanses the stomach of all morbid humors, which cause indigestion, acidities, headach, and lowness of spirits; cures all bilious disorders, and all cholics of the stomach and bowels, almost immediately: inspires cheerfulness; gives comfort to the dropsical; takes away palpitation of the heart; gives circulation to the blood; restores bloom to the sallow or sickly cheek, and plumpness to the meagre habit: purges without pain, and banishes all cause of fever of every kind. It acts on the stomach, that great reservoir of the human system, a diseased state of which causes all diseases. No alteration in the usual habits of life is required, but the abstaining from distilled ardent spirits.

CERTIFICATE.

From Rev. Derick Lansing, D. D., Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Utica.

UTICA, Jan. 6, 1830.

To Dr. Hitchcock.—Dear Sir: I have always been one of the number of those who have placed little confidence in nostrums or specifics, and for this reason, although I saw your advertisement of the Welch Medicamentum, I could not bring my mind to consent to use it. My sufferings, from indigestion, during the past summer, were so severe, as materially to affect my comfort, and my capacity for usefulness. I have reason to thank you, sir, that, on hearing of the state of my health, you kindly sent me your Medicamentum. I have taken it faithfully, and with entire success. I have not been visited with one of those turns of distress, which before were weekly periodical, since I began to take your valuable medicine. Could I receive the same relief which I have hitherto experienced, on condition of taking it for life, I should cheerfully comply with such condition. Your's, very truly, D. C. LANSING.

Rights to use the machine in that part of the United States, named above, will be sold by the single county or in larger districts. As it is presumed that no one will purchase without seeing the machine at work, a description of it is deemed unnecessary. Should any person, however, wish to purchase, and find it inconvenient to visit the places where it is in operation, a machine will be furnished, warranted to plane, tongue and groove, and bring to an exact width and thickness, a white pine board of 12 feet long, and of any width from 1 to 14 inches, in one minute and ten seconds, or an oak board of the same dimensions in 2 minutes and 10 seconds. Machines may be seen at work in the cities of New Orleans, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and others at the south and east, at Wheeling, Virginia, and at the saw mill of Messrs. Irwin & Herron, in this city.

Persons desiring to purchase will have the certificates of scientific and practical men who have seen it at work, in the different places in which it has been put up, forwarded to them. They give their opinion as to the great value of the invention, state the time they have seen boards dressed by this machine, and describe the quality of the work as compared with that performed by hand labor.

TO THE PUBLIC.

WE wish to caution our friends against an imposition too successfully practised on them, with spurious Nails stamped "JUNIATA."—This caution is deemed necessary from the fact that Nails have been manufactured from inferior Iron, and receive this brand.

An attempt of this kind is calculated to bring into disrepute the JUNIATA IRON, which has been long known to our western friends as an article of the very best quality. We would advise, therefore, in order to defeat this imposition, that the purchaser be governed in his selection by the names of the manufacturers, which will be found marked on the end of each keg of nails, and stamped on each bar of iron.

The undersigned manufacture their Iron from the Ore, and will stand accountable for the quality of the Iron and Nails marked with their stamp.
